

STMicroelectronics
The world's third largest microchip manufacturer.

No one knows more than ST the importance of working with leaders. For years we've worked with strategic partners in the most important application sectors, developing devices with superior levels of intellectual property.

To understand the importance of a leader,
try working without one.

Along the way we have gained some leadership ourselves—especially in convergent technologies. Today, that leadership is at work with our strategic partners to develop new convergent systems for computer peripherals, automotive, telecommunications, digital consumer and smartcard applications.
